THE MAN IN THE MOON.

Whee!
Whimm!
Ain't you sorry for him?
And a mole on his nose that is purple and black,
And his eyes are so weak that they water and run
If he dares to dream even that he looks at the sun;
So he just dreams of the stars, as the doctors advise.
My!
Eyes!
But isn't he wise—
To just dream of stars, as the doctors advise?

And the man in the Moon has a boil on his ear—
Whee!
Whing!
What a singular thing!
I know! but these facts are authentic, my dear—
There's a boil on his ear and a corn on his chin—
He calls it a dimple—but dimples stick in—
Yet it might be a dimple, turned over you know.
Whang!
Ho!
Why certainly so!—
Might be a dimple turned over, you know!

And the man in the Moon has a rheumatic knee—
Gee!
Whizz!
What a pity that is!
And his toes have worked round where his heels ought to be
So whenever he wants to go north he goes south,
And comes back with porridge crumbs all round his mouth,
And he brushes them off with a Japanese fan.
Whing!
Whang!
What a marvelous man!
What a very remarkable marvelous man!

STORY OF BUFFALO JO.

Special Correspondence of Philadelphia Times.

FORT CONCHO, Texas, Sept. 12.

In the days of the overland stage, when the then Territory of Bexar was "a howling wilderness" in more senses than one, this place was the "outfitting" station for the Staked Plain buffalo hunters. An enormous business was transacted by the shop keepers in those days and the presence of a large force of soldiers made things lively for the casinos and the gamblers. With the disappearance of the buffalo Fort Concho lost prestige, and since its abandonment as a military post the gamblers, their frail companions and the saloon-keepers have migrated to other and more lively localities. A rise in the Concho river last fall destroyed a large portion of the outlying town and swept away the post's sister settlement at Benficklin. The seat of Tom Green county has been moved to San Angela, which is built on high ground that no flood will ever reach, and the latter place, from its central position in the county and its shire importance, bids fair to become a town of some mark and will probably be connected with the rest of the world by a railroad before many years. When I first visited Fort Concho there was a small prairie dog village about a mile from the post, on the bank of the South Concho. These industrious little animals have increased in numbers since then and their village has become a vast city, the limits of which extend far beyond the dismantled post. As I write this a thousand of the bright eyed little fellows are eying me from their positions on top of their underground habitations and a chorus of short, sharp barks evoke echoes among the walls of the abandoned barracks, which are fast going to pieces. This desolation and decay causes a momentary pang of regret and my mind flies back to the old days when a thousand soldiers, double that number of hunters and scouts, and the full complement of gamblers, Mexicans, Indians, etc., made a constantly shifting panorama of barbaric picturesqueness on the spot now given up to the prairie dog. I killed buffalo for two years for the great firm of McCarthy & Cunningham and the money I earned on the range both seasons, at the hardest work a man ever tackled, was spent to the last cinque at old Fort Concho. How times have changed since those days. I was thinking over the members of our outfit the other day and could only recall two out of the hundred odd that were my companions on the buffalo range as now living. I made inquiries for some of them at the hotel at San Angela, the clerk of which was a prosperous trader at Fort Concho in my time. As I called over the list he would sadly shake his head and murmur under his breath the single word, "dead!"

THE STORY OF BUFFALO JO.

'What became of old Buffalo Jo?' I asked, finally.

'She is dead, also,' he answered, and then added: 'It was sadly pathetic.'

I pricked up my ears and bent closer. He did not speak and I questioned him further.

'It would look well in print,' he said, and then, after a short pause, he began:

'I knew Buffalo Jo,' he said, 'away back in the fifties, when she first came to Fort Concho. You remember her only as a hardened woman, steeped in vice. I saw her when she was a fresh-faced, modest girl. You know that she was a woman of great intelligence. She was as refined and gentle as she was learned. Her father was old Colonel Dubo and in the old happy days when she presided at the head of her father's house was, as Miss Josephine Dubo, the acknowledged belle of the post. I think she was about seventeen when she first met Major Doyle. He was nearly forty, a man disliked by his brother officers and hated by the common soldiers. He was a good officer, so far as bravery is concerned, but he was cruel and tyrannical, mean, selfish and revengeful. I don't know at the time what subtle influence he exerted over that gentle girl, but anyway the whole post was very much surprised when it became known that they were to be married. I was the post-trader's clerk then, and, of course, heard all the gossip of the line. Every one who referred to the coming marriage in my hearing deplored it as a sacrifice on Miss Dubo's part and all spoke contemptuously of her prospective husband. In spite of the gossips, however, they were married. I attended the wedding, which was held in the post chapel, and although all remarked on the loveliness of the bride and the ugliness of the groom, I, who had put this and that together, looked deeper and read in the cunning lines about the Major's brow, eyes and cruel mouth malicious triumph, and in Josephine Dubo's sad and downcast eyes hopeless despair. After developments proved the correctness of my mental diagnosis. In those days the officers played for heavy stakes, and it came out after old Colonel Dubo's death, he died about a month after the wedding and while the couple were spending their honeymoon in the States—that he had lost thousands of dollars to Major Doyle, and to save himself from disgrace had sold his pure and innocent daughter, body and soul, to a man who had no mercy.

'Major Doyle and wife came back to the post that fall. By the death of the colonel he became a lieutenant colonel and was placed in command. The newly-married couple occupied the old colonel's quarters and Mrs. Doyle seemed very happy, but I occasionally noticed dark lines under her eyes, as though from loss of sleep or intense mental agony, and her face to me always wore an expression of hopeless resignation to a fate she had had no hand in shaping. Before spring it began to be whispered about that the major and his wife did not live happily together and it was also whispered that he was intensely jealous of one of the subalterns, a young lieutenant, who paid Mrs. Doyle marked attention. In the spring Mrs. Doyle gave birth to a daughter and for awhile the tongues of the gossips were silenced. Finally they began to wag again and one day matters came to a focus. The major, returning suddenly from a scout after Indians, found the handsome lieutenant in company with his wife, and, he afterwards said, that he surprised them in the very act of dishonoring him. Anyway, hot words passed between the two men and the lieutenant struck his superior officer. The latter, mad with passion, drew his pistol and laid the young man at his feet dead. It was then that his wife's long slumbering passion was aroused. She threw herself on the body of her murdered lover with piercing screams and when the major attempted to raise her she shrank from him with loathing.'

'I hate you!' she cried, and her eyes blazed. 'I hate you—I have always hated you! You bought me, and for love of my poor father and to save him from ruin and disgrace I consented to the sacrifice. You have murdered the only man I ever loved—for I did love him. Henceforth I go my way and you go yours. When I first knew you I was a pure and innocent girl. Now I am a hardened woman. You made me what I am and I curse you for it!'

GOING DOWN HILL.

'She uttered this phillippic with the air and voice of a tragedy queen and swept from the room. She never darkened his door again, and although they met daily neither seemed to be aware of the existence of the other. Lieutenant Colonel Doyle was court-martialed for the shooting, but the commission exonerated him. Mrs. Doyle took up with a gambler, named Davis, and they lived together. She never recognized her old acquaintances, and of course, they never noticed her. A few months after the separation Colonel Doyle was transferred to a post in one of the northern Territories and husband and wife never met again. Mrs. Doyle remained at the post and she led a very gay life. She seemed always in the most joyous spirits, but it was a forced gayety. Inwardly she must have suffered the most poignant anguish. To drown her sorrow she began to drink and I saw her many times in a beastly state of intoxication. The gambler 'shook her' and she became the mistress of a buffalo killer named Fletcher. She accompanied him on his hunting trips to the Staked Plain, and it was during one of these scouts that you met her. She lost all her modesty and the lower she sank in vice the more brazen and depraved she became. She learned to curse, and in the rough life she led on the buffalo range all traces of tender womanhood disappeared. It was on the range, where, as you know, she did her share of the killing, skinning and rendering with the rest of the men, that she acquired the name of Buffalo Jo, by which she was known down to the day of her death. Jo was a pretty good shot with the rifle or pistol and she could throw a lariat with the most practiced vaquero. She drank like a sailor, cursed like a pirate and rode like a centaur. She would hunt all day and gamble all night. She knew this country like a book and for years was a government guide. She had a constitution of iron and was capable of enduring any amount of suffering and exposure uncomplainingly. After Fletcher died—he was killed at Fort Davis by Arizona Alf in '76—Jo drifted from bad to worse. Her associates were of the most depraved character and she was drunk two-thirds of the time.

'During all these years she had held no communication with Doyle, and knew nothing of the disposition he had made of their daughter. Doyle died in the spring of 1880. He had been on the retired list for several years prior to his death, and when he finally 'passed in his chips' no one regretted it, for I don't think there was an officer in the army who was held in such universal detestation. Jo disappeared shortly after the news reached us of her husband's death and did not turn up at the post again until after the Victorio raid in the fall of 1880. One day she came in on the Overland and two hours after her arrival was roaring drunk. She was at this time only the wreck of the woman she had once been, and I, who remembered her in the old days, could scarcely credit the change which liquor and vice had wrought. Jo visited all the saloons and then took it into her head to go through the post. She was swaggering along, with a clay pipe between her teeth and a bottle of 'mountain juice' in her hand, when three young girls passed her. Two of them were officers' daughters and the third a friend who was paying them a visit. Jo leered at them horribly and, flourishing the bottle over her head, gave utterance to a string of obscenity and profanity that would have made the hardest sinner shudder. The three girls turned and ran, screaming with fright. Jo followed them, yelling wildly.

'During the chase she tripped and fell, cutting a deep gash in her head on a sharp stone. She lay there, speechless and without motion. The two officers' daughters continued their flight, but their companion, when she saw the accident which had befallen their pursuer, retraced her steps and knelt beside the prostrate woman. She wiped away the blood with her dainty handkerchief and laid her soft, white hand on the disgraced woman's face. The touch, light as it was, caused Jo to open her eyes and she rose to her feet, with a blush of shame on her cheek.

'Thankee,' she said, and would have passed on, but the girl detained her.

'You will forgive me,' she said, 'because we were indirectly responsible for your fall. I am very sorry that it occurred and would like to do something for you by way of atonement—that is, if you will let me.'

'What's your name?' was Jo's question.

'Minnie Doyle,' was the answer. 'I am stopping with the commanding officer.'

FINDING A DAUGHTER.

'She did not notice the sudden look of pain which shot across Jo's face and she failed to hear the convulsive sob which rose to the fallen woman's lips.'

'Minnie Doyle,' repeated Jo mechanically, and then paused.

'Perhaps during the brief moment of silence all the bitter past rose before her and she had time to compare the two pictures—that of Josephine Dubo, innocent and happy, with that of Buffalo Jo, depraved and miserable. Anyway a a great hungry look came into her eyes and she took a step toward the young girl.

'Minnie,' she said, 'will you kiss me?'

'Yes,' was the brave answer, and the young lips, as yet unstained and unpolluted, were upraised and just touched Jo's swollen and repulsive mouth.'

'The girl repressed a shudder and Jo turned abruptly away and walked straight to the little jacal where she made her home. She drank no more whisky that day and about midnight the post surgeon was called in to attend her. She was violently ill and sinking very rapidly. After examining her case critically the surgeon declared that all hope of her recovery was past.

'She will die before morning,' he said.

'What's that?' cried Jo, starting up.

'The doctor sez ez how ye've re'ched ther last rattel out'n ther box,' answered a gambler who was standing at the head of the bed.

'Leave the room, all of you,' she cried. 'I have something to say to the doctor.'

'The crowd filed slowly out and the dying woman held a few minutes' whispered conversation with the doctor. At its close he hurried to the post and Jo sank back on the bed exhausted. When the doctor returned he was accompanied by Minnie Doyle, and when they entered the room Jo started up with a glad cry.'

'Minnie! My daughter!' she cried and held out her arms.

'Mother!' answered the girl through her tears, and springing forward, clasped the wretched creature in her arms.'

'Thank God!' whispered Jo, faintly, and with a new and almost beautific light shining in her eyes, fell back dead.'

"I had 'em all," said a rotund happy-faced gentleman. "All what?" asked his friend. "Why all the symptoms of malaria, viz: lame back, aching joints, sleeplessness, indigestion, dizzy fits, cold extremities, rush of blood to the head, constant fatigue, no appetite, pains in the breast after eating, night sweats, alternate chills and fever, etc., etc., but Brown's Iron Bitters cured me and I recommend it as being the only perfect tonic made."

A Terrible Destiny.

The Rev. Dr. Miller tells a good anecdote, illustrating the popular idea entertained about the three leading professions. He says an anxious father consulted a seer to find out, if possible, the destiny of his three boys. To his great dismay, the man of knowledge declared: "One will be a murderer, another a falsifier, and the third a pauper living on the town." As the good father began to bewail his lot the seer added: "Do not mourn; those are the common lots of men. Your first son will be a doctor, the second a lawyer, and the third a country clergyman."

Wonders Never Cease.

A long time ago the wise man said there is nothing new under the sun, but yet the daily experience of hundreds seem to prove this false. Some contend that the days of miracles are past, but yet it appears as if they are not yet gone by when such men as I. N. Tidball, of Washington, Pa., give the following remarkable testimony:

"I have been a severe sufferer from chronic rheumatism and kidney affection for over twenty years, and after having tried nearly everything without getting relief, commenced using Peruna a few months ago. The benefit I have received is wonderful. I feel like a new man, and am fully restored to health."

Surely such a cure is remarkable, and none should hesitate any longer about using Peruna, the great remedy discovered by Dr. Hartman. Send to your druggist for a bottle, and ask for his book on the "Ills of Life."

The Hunting of Deer.

In order that none of our readers may be in ignorance as to the law relating to the hunting of deer, we give the following digest of the game law of June 22, 1883:

The act prohibits the killing of deer except between Oct. 1 and Dec. 15 next following, and also prohibits any person from having in his possession and offering for sale or transport any wild deer or fresh venison except only between the 1st day of October and the 20th day of November next following.

The killing of spotted fawn at any time is unlawful.

The running of dogs is prohibited, and a fine of $20 is imposed upon any person who shall kill a deer which has been run into the water by dogs.

To have the fresh skin of a deer or or fawn in possession is made an offense, punishable the same as having fresh venison in possession out of season.

Dogs pursuing wild deer may be killed by any person, and constables or other town officers may kill any dog that habitually pursues deer. The owner of such dog is made liable to a penalty of $10 for each deer killed by his dog.

All acts or parts of acts which are inconsistent with the foregoing provisions are repealed.

THE HIGHEST AUTHORITY.

Upon a Subject of Vital Interest, Effecting the Welfare of All.

The following remarkable letter from one of the leading and best known scientific writers of the present day is specially significant, and should be of unusual value to all readers who desire to keep pace with the march of modern discoveries and events:

"A general demand for reformation is one of the most distinctive characteristics of the nineteenth century. The common people, as well as the more enlightened and refined, cry out with no uncertain voice to be emancipated from the slavery of conservatism and superstition, which has held the masses in gross ignorance during a large portion of the world's history, and in the time of the 'Dark Ages' came near obliterating the last glimmer of truth. Dogmatic assertions and blind empiricism are losing caste among all classes of all countries. People are beginning to think for themselves, and to regard authority much less than argument. Men and women are no longer willing that a few individuals should dictate to them what must be their sentiments and opinions. They claim the right to solve for themselves the great questions of the day and demand that the general good of humanity shall be respected. As the result of this general awakening, we see, on every hand, unmistakable evidences of reformatory action. People who, a few years ago, endured suffering the most intense in the name of duty, now realize the utter foolishness of such a course. Men who were under bondage of bigoted advisers allowed their health to depart; suffered their constitutions to become undermined and finally died as martyrs to a false system of treatment. There are millions of people filling untimely graves who might have lived to a green old age had their original troubles been taken in time or properly treated. There are thousands of people to day, thoughtlessly enduring the first symptoms of some serious malady and without the slightest realization of the danger that is before them. They have occasional headaches; a lack of appetite one day and a ravenous one the next, or an unaccountable feeling of weariness, sometimes accompanied by nausea and attribute all these troubles to the old idea of 'a slight cold' or malaria. It is high time that people awoke to a knowledge of the seriousness of these matters and emancipated themselves from the professional bigotry which controls them. When this is done and when all classes of physicians become liberal enough to exclude all dogmas, save that it is their duty to cure disease as quickly, and as safely as possible; to maintain no other position than that of truth honestly ascertained, and to endorse and recommend any remedy that has been found useful, no matter what its origin, there will be no more quarreling among the doctors, while there will be great rejoicing throughout the world."

"I am aware of the censure that will be meted out to me for writing this letter but I feel that I cannot be true to my honest convictions unless I extend a helping hand and endorse all that I know to be good. The extended publications for the past few years, and graphic descriptions of different diseases of the kidneys and liver have awakened the medical profession to the fact that these diseases are greatly increasing. The treatment of the doctors has been largely experimental and many of their patients have died while they were casting about for a remedy to cure them.

"It is now over two years since my attention was first called to the use of a most wonderful preparation in the treatment of Bright's disease of the kidneys. Patients had frequently asked me about the remedy and I had heard of remarkable cures effected by it, but like many others I hesitated to recommend its use. A personal friend of mine had been in poor health for some time and his application for insurance on his life had been rejected on account of Bright's disease. Chemical and microscopical examinations of his urine revealed the presence of large quantities of albumen and granular tube casts, which confirmed the correctness of the diagnosis. After trying all the usual remedies, I directed him to use this preparation and was greatly surprised to observe a decided improvement within a month, and within four months no tube casts could be discovered. At that time there was present only a trace of albumen, and he felt, as he expressed it, 'perfectly well,' and all through the influence of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy he used.

"After this I prescribed this medicine in full doses in both acute and chronic nephritis, [Bright's disease] and with the most satisfactory results. My observations were neither small in number nor hastily made. They extended over several months and embraced a large number of cases which have proved so satisfactory to my mind, that I would earnestly urge upon my professional brethren the importance of giving a fair and patient trial to Warner's Safe Cure. In a large class of ailments where the blood is obviously in an unhealthy state, especially where glandular engorgements and inflammatory eruptions exist, indeed in many of those forms of chronic indisposition in which there is no evidence of organic mischief, but where the general health is depleted, the face sallow, the urine colored, constituting the condition in which the patient is said to be 'bilious,' the advantage gained by the use of this remedy is remarkable. In Bright's disease it seems to act as a solvent of albumen; to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes; to wash out the epithelial debris which blocks up the tubili uriniferi, and to prevent a destructive metamorphosis of tissue.

"Belonging as I do to a branch of the profession that believes that no one school of medicine knows all the truth regarding the treatment of disease, and being independent enough to select any remedy that will relieve my patients, without reference to the source from whence it comes, I am glad to acknowledge and commend the merits of this remedy thus frankly."

Respectfully yours,

Going To China For A Bride.

The latest victim of the matrimonial fever, says the Philadelphia Press, is Lang Yip, a Chinese laundryman of Oil City, who does business under the pseudonym of Wan Shung. He started for China last Monday morning, for the express purpose of getting married. He has never seen nor had any correspondence with his intended, and knows nothing about her, whatever. But his Celestial mother has arranged everything for him. She has picked out a wife for him and he will see her for the first time on the day of their marriage. Yip has been in this country four years, during which time he has become Americanized to such an extent that he wears American boots and clothing, smokes cigars, plays poker, drinks beer, and goes to Sunday school, and says he would prefer to see the prospective Mrs. Yip before the wedding day. He says, however, he will marry her and if he likes her style will "Blingee her black to Meerica" with him, but if he does not he will come back without her.

A Pithy Sentence.

A well known statesman of this country once said when summing up the events of a life time: "Youth is a blunder, manhood a struggle, old age a regret." He might have had added many more wonders, but they are not necessary, for his aphorism expresses much. Yet it is a well known fact that the above could not not be said of life were all classes aware what a great remedy Peruna is, and what wondrous cures it has performed. For the ills of youth it is a wonderous specific. The worry and tear of manhood's struggle for existence enfeeble his system, and he needs such a tonic, and when old age comes on with its feebleness and regrets for failures and mistakes, the great remedy, Peruna, can still be used with good effect, and if given a fair trial will accomplish wonders.

GEORGE K. ANDERSON, of Titusville, has enjoyed the distinction of being the heaviest insured man in the country, having an aggregate insurance on his life of $250,000. But Mr. Anderson has lost his prestige in this respect, for Hamilton Disston, of Philadelphia, now carries more life insurance than any other man. His insurance has recently been increased to $400,000.—Ex.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.:

WOLCOTT, Wayne Co. N. Y.

Gentlemen—For many years I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism. Much of the time I had but little use of my arms; my hands were drawn out of shape, and nearly lost the use of one of my limbs. I have been treated by the best physicians, and have taken many different remedies that were highly recommended, but grew worse all the time until I commenced using Rheumatic Syrup, and before I had used one bottle I began to improve, and after taking the Syrup four weeks, I was completely cured, and to-day I am as well as ever, and can use my hands and limbs as freely as when a boy. The effect of the Rheumatic Syrup has been truly wonderful in my case, and I find, on inquiry, that it is doing equally as well in every other case where it is being used. You are at liberty to use my name as you choose, as I am very glad to be able to say, as I can, that the Rheumatic Syrup is one of the best medicines on the market, and a single trial will convince any one of its wonderful merits.

THE Boston Herald says that "the democratic party stands greatly in need of an intelligent and unselfish independent element." Yes, it does, indeed; but it is not likely to get it very soon. The democratic party, according to the Chicago Times, "is an organized appetite," and an unsatiated appetite is not very unselfish. Independent thinkers don't feel at home in the democratic party.

N. W. Ayer & Son's American Newspaper Annual 1883

contains a carefully prepared list of all Newspapers and Periodicals in the United States and Canada, arranged by States in Geographical Sections, and by Towns in alphabetical order.

In this list also is given the name of the paper, the issue, general characteristics, year of establishment, size, circulation, and advertising rates for ten lines one month.

Then follows a list of all Newspapers inserting Advertisements, arranged in States by Counties, with the distinctive features and circulation of each paper.

Also special lists of Religious, Agricultural, and all known class publications. Trade Journals are arranged under their respective headings in alphabetical order so that any paper published in the interest of any particular trade can be seen at a glance.

It gives the population of the United States, and of each State, Territory, County and County-seat, the chief cities and towns, and of nearly every place in which a paper is published, from the Census of 1880. Also similar information concerning the Dominion of Canada, from the Census of 1881.

It also gives the Political majorities and the Greenback vote of States and Counties at the Presidential election of 1880.

It also contains a carefully-prepared description of every County in the United States, as well as each State and Territory as a whole, and of each of the Canadian Provinces, giving valuable information concerning their mineral deposits, chief Agricultural products, principal manufactures, nature of the surface and soil, location, area, etc.

On page 6 is given a Tabulated statement of Newspapers in each of the various sections of the country, giving the number of each issue in each State, Territory and Province; also the number of Counties and towns in which papers are published, and the number of Towns which are County-seats; and on page 7 a summary of the above and a comparative statement of the increase in 1883 over 1882.

On pages 9 and 10 is a list of the Cities, Towns and Villages of the United States having a population of five thousand and upward, arranged in alphabetical order.

There is no other single publication within our knowledge which contains information of such varied use and value for general business purposes. Complete in all its departments, thorough in its details, giving just the information needed, and only that, simply arranged, easily referred to, carefully compiled,—it is, in fact, a model work of its kind.

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. This change is made for two reasons: first, because ginger is unimportant flavoring ingredient, and secondly because unprincipled dealers deceive their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac-simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

DON'T WAIT A DAY.

See that every republican voter pays his taxes on or before Oct. 6.

Attend to the naturalization of every man who will vote the republican ticket on or before the sixth day of October.

Don't lose a vote by carelessness. The democrats boast of their organization and our apathy. Let us show them how weak the reed on which they lean.

Every republican can serve his party this way. See the collector and close this avenue of democratic hope.

ATTEND TO THIS AT ONCE.

THE governor and democratic house of representatives are doing excellent work for the republican ticket. Cooper, the "red headed son of perdition," as a democratic member called him the other day, can scarcely improve with his great fertility of resources.

THE voters of McKean county will make no mistake in electing John R. Shoemaker for county treasurer. He is undoubtedly the most competent man for the place in the county and is worthy of the honor. If elected he will attend to the duties of the office himself.

DEMOCRATIC editors groan over a surplus in the treasury. So did James Buchanan while he was president, but before he went out of office he was peddling the bonds of the government at 88 cents on the dollar to raise money for the ordinary expenses of the government.

WITHIN the past week the republican State senate has passed two resolutions providing for the adjournment of the legislature, sine die, at early dates. The democratic house has refused to act on the resolutions, and seem determined to continue the legislative farce.

THE Harrisburg Patriot proposes to publish a list of the great number of democratic representatives who regularly absent themselves from the sessions of the house. Between the governor and the democratic newspapers the democratic representatives have rather a hard time of it.

THE Bedford Inquirer is shocked to learn that Governor Pattison spends his time at Atlantic City, that Attorney General Cassidy finds it more pleasant to be in Philadelphia, while home attractions takes Secretary Stenger to Franklin county, and the clerks are left at Harrisburg to figure on the democratic reform puzzle.

THE legislature of New Hampshire has just adjourned after the longest session in the history of the State. We are gravely informed that it will take $100,000 to pay the members' salaries. When it is considered that Pennsylvania will this year have to pay $800,000 for legislative service (!) it will be seen that New Hampshire has many things to learn yet.

THE republican campaign managers are making preparations for the opening of an active campaign, and it is the duty of all republicans to extend to them their heartiest co-operation. The democrats are boasting of their organization. Let the republicans at once see to it that theirs is more efficient. The chances of success are with the republicans, but victory is not to be won with supineness and indifference. On a full vote of parties there are fifty thousand more republican than democratic votes. The democrats base their hopes upon neglect to pay taxes and naturalization of republicans. Chairmen of county committees, and republicans generally, should see that these important considerations are attended to without delay. The people of Pennsylvania have already had an expensive lesson in the imbecility of democratic administration. The only way to save the commonwealth from further humiliation and disgrace will be a clean sweep in November. This will insure success in the important elections of next year. Republicans! Do your full duty and the victory will be yours.

DELEGATES [illegible]

The Chairman [illegible] instructed the [illegible] National Committee to prescribe a method for the election of delegates to the National convention of 1884 and to issue a call to the convention in accordance therewith. The only limitation placed upon the committee was that nothing in their method shall be construed to prevent the several districts in the United States from selecting their own delegates to the National convention. On the 17th of January last the National committee met at Washington, and, after full consideration and warm discussion of a great many plans and suggestions, it was resolved that the constitution of the convention should remain as heretofore, viz., four delegates-at-large from each State, two delegates from each congressional district, and two delegates from each territory and the District of Columbia.

As to the time and mode of choosing these delegates, the committee laid down an explicit rule, to which all republican State and district conventions will do well to conform, if they do not wish to have their credentials questioned and their delegates unseated in favor of others chosen according to the method prescribed. This rule is as follows:

The delegates at large should be chosen by popular delegate State conventions, called on not less than twenty days' published notice, and held not less than thirty nor more than sixty days before the time for the meeting of the National convention. The republicans of the various congressional districts shall have the option of electing their delegates at separate popular delegate conventions, called on similar notice and held in the districts at any time within the fifteen days next prior to the meeting of the State conventions, or by subdivisions of the State conventions into district conventions, and such delegates shall be chosen by the latter method, if not elected previous to the meeting of the State conventions, all district delegates to be accredited by the officers of such district conventions.

The call for the next National republican convention has not been made. The time and place for holding it will not be fixed until the National committee meets in December next.

Under the rule the republicans are insured district representation. The district conventions to choose delegates must meet within fifteen days of the meeting of the State convention. The latter, by its own rule, must be held in presidential years, "not more than thirty days previous to the day fixed for the National convention." By the National committee's rule the State convention to elect delegates-at-large must be held "not less than thirty days" before the National convention. To comply with both these rules the State republican convention of next year will have to be held exactly thirty days before the date of the National convention, and continue in session but one day.

THE impudence of the "democratic press" in persisting in the pretense that the democrats in the House have tried, and deserve credit for trying, to make honest apportionments, is only equalled by their mendacity. Four months ago the bills which the Senate has passed were adopted. Three months ago the Stewart bill was offered them, and rejected contemptuously by them. Since then they have spent three months in bullying, begging and squandering. They know that having driven the Senate to passing its bills, and declaring they would consider no other, the end of legislation was reached. They and the Governor attempted to coerce the Senate until they wasted so much money that they are afraid to adjourn, and they hang on because to stop is destruction, while to hold the session until the election, and attempt to deceive the people by sheer, desperate falsehood is their only hope. This is the simple truth.

IN 1882, the proposition was made to Governor Hoyt to call the legislature together in extra session for the purpose of apportioning the State into congressional, judicial, senatorial and legislative districts. Every democratic newspaper of the State denounced the proposition as an outrage on the people, as it would involve a heavy expense, entirely unnecessary, and a base partisan scheme. In 1883, a democratic governor calls an extra session to apportion the State, and all of the democratic organs approve of the act, solemnly because they expected to secure partisan advantage thereby. The experiment, up to date, will cost the State $230,000.

JOHN R. SHOEMAKER is a poor man. He did not hold title to a lot of apparently worthless land, which made him rich by proving to be oil territory. He has had to earn his living from the time he became of age, and having a large family to support, although his labor has always commanded a good price, he is yet poor and dependent upon the labor of his hands and brain for a living. He is eminently competent and capable for the position for which he asks the support of his friends and the party. Every poor man, every laboring man, every man of means or wealth who has earned his wealth will feel kindly toward him and should support him.

THE Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin advocates holding the next National Republican State Convention at Cresson Springs. It is a happy thought. No better place could be secured than where the delegates can breathe the pure and invigorating air of the top of the Allegheny mountains.

CHAIRMAN HENSEL announces that Gordon, the administration spokesman in the senate, will take the stump for the democratic State ticket, whereupon the Philadelphia Press is moved to remark that unless Chairman Cooper wants the earth he ought to be satisfied with this.

GENERAL BEAVER'S election last year with a republican house of representatives would have saved the taxpayers of the State a half million dollars, which Pattison's scheme legislature has already cost the State.

[illegible] the Governor [illegible] folly. If he vetoed [illegible] he would virtually declare himself for the indefinite continuance of the three thousand dollar a day extravagance. The one would exasperate the ten dollar statesmen who are relied on to carry out the Administration policy; the other would provoke public criticism and condemnation; and either would be awkward and embarrassing. The Governor has chosen the latter horn. He has vetoed the resolution.

The moral effect of this act is to put the Governor squarely on the side of the salary-grabbers. In itself the veto is impotent for any immediate end. It is simply a declaratory issue with a declaratory resolution. All the practical action is to come hereafter. The matter of pay hangs on legislation; there can be no pay without an appropriation bill, and the senate at least has committed itself against any bill which shall provide pay beyond the 10th of September. All the same the veto shows where the Governor stands, and he places himself with the salary-grabbers. He had, indeed, nothing else to do unless he was completely to abandon his incessante policy. He could not ask the ten-dollar legislators to prolong their pitiful farce, and at the same time declare himself against paying them. If he insisted that it was right to go on without restriction, he must equally insist that it was right to pay on without limit. His whole policy as to the extra session has been a monumental blunder, and this act of arraying himself with the salary-grabbers is its natural cap stone.

The reasons by which the Governor attempts to justify his veto are trivial and flimsy. His argument that the resolution violates the constitutional provision for the separate organization of the two Houses is little short of ludicrous. Neither House pretends to instruct the committees of the other. The resolution was the concurrent action of both Houses, and all legislation comes in the same way. Nor is there much more force in the second objection, that the proposition contravenes the principle that the pay of public officers shall not be reduced during their term. The Legislature must pass the appropriation bill providing for its own pay; and if it chooses to provide for its own pay only to a particular day, who shall question it? The Governor has not another reason to give, and the poverty of his argument betrays the utter weakness of his cause.

It was expected that the Governor would seize the opportunity to lecture the Legislature on the subject of apportionment, and the lecture is as unwarranted in its assertions as his position is false in its character. He assumes that the House seeks an agreement and that the Senate is the only obstacle. Every intelligent and candid man knows that this is not true. The Senate has frankly and honestly declared precisely what it would do; it has passed bills which are fair and just; and the State can have an apportionment to-morrow if the House chooses to accept them. The Governor's treatment of the question is disingenuous and unworthy. He has suffered himself to be misled and betrayed into a course which cannot be justified, and the more he attempts to get out of the mud the deeper he plunges into the mire. The culmination of his blunders is this act which puts him on the same platform with the salary-grabbers.

A Few Figures.

The democratic organs are trying to get their party out of the hole in which it has placed itself under the leadership of the administration bosses, by falsely asserting that the regular and present special sessions of the legislature will not cost the State any more than the regular session of 1881. This is a falsehood manufactured out of whole cloth.

The session of the legislature in 1881, including pay, mileage, postage and stationery of senators and members, pay and mileage of officers and employes; the cost of repairs, new furniture, carpets and all the expense connected with the care of the capital from November 1, 1880 to November 1, 1881, including the payment of $3,000 for improving ventilation of the house of representatives amounted in all to $408,674 95, according to the Auditor General's report.

The pay of senators and members, mileage, postage and stationery allowance for the regular session of 1883 was the same as in 1881. In 1881 the officers and employes were paid for the fifty days in excess of the one hundred days, the same as members. This year the Governor vetoes the pay of the officers and employes for the extra fifty days of the regular session, amounting to about $21,000. Placing the cost of repairs new furniture, and all expenses of the legislature yet to be paid, or contracted, at $30,000 less than in 1881, it would show that the cost of the regular session of, 1883 has cost about $50,000 less than that of 1881. But this reduction of $50,000 is only conceded because the democrats claim it to have been made. The official records not yet made up will show the facts in the case. Then we have the cost of the regular session of 1883 amounting to $358,674 95 on the basis that it cost $50,000 less than the session of 1881, as shown by the Auditor General's report.

The cost of the special session, including everything, as estimated by the democrats, up to September 13th, amounts to $303,000, in round numbers. Add this to the cost of the regular session and we have a total of $662,674 95, or an excess of cost to the State compared with the session of 1881 of $254,000. Unofficial, but reliable figures, place the total cost of the legislature since January 1, to September 13, 1883, including all incidental expenses, at $730,000, which would make the cost to the State $321,000 more than the cost of the legislature of 1881, and proves the democratic statement to be only a campaign lie.—Venango Citizen.

EX-TREASURER BUTLER ON LIVSEY.—At the republican meeting in West Chester on Friday evening last, Ex State Treasurer Samuel Butler said he could bear testimony to the character of Mr. Livsey as he had known him intimately for years and he didn't know a man in the commonwealth who was as well qualified to fill the office of State treasurer. While in the office under him he had made himself familiar with every duty of the department. He (Butler) always felt that every dollar was safe in his (Livsey's) hands. He never transcended his duties nor allowed a subordinate to do it. I say all this in justice to Mr. Livsey. As for the claim for credit made by the democrats in having made the law authorizing the investment of the surplus in United States bonds, how long have they been in favor of so investing State money? Certainly not when these bonds were issued for the purpose of checking funds with which to coerce the rebels. We know in what condition

[illegible] for being both [illegible] ous, foolish charge, with no other [illegible] of argument and good sense. Mr. Hensel does not allude to Mr. Livsey's war record. Mr. Livsey is the tool of no man, no man dare approach him for a dishonest purpose. He will represent the commonwealth honestly and intelligently.

Justice To Gen. Beaver.

The independent republicans have returned to the republican party, and we welcome them back. They went of their own volition, and returned in the same manner. We would say or do nothing that would tend to disturb the harmony that now seems generally to prevail. But the independents must remember that after a most active canvass, they could poll only one-eighth as many votes as the regular republicans, and that the seven-eighths have convictions of duty as well as they have, and if the independents expect to have equal privileges and equal endorsements in the future of the united party, they will see the propriety of removing some points as far as possible, that will weigh as a mill stone about their necks in future conventions of the party. One of the most important is that justice be done to Gen. Beaver. A brave officer who was almost shot to pieces in his country's service, a Christian gentleman against whose pure character nothing could be truthfully said, and whose qualifications and party allegiance were unchallenged, he was mortally stabbed in the house of his friends. This wrong should be removed speedily, and our independent friends will act wisely by moving at once for justice to Gen. Beaver. The injustice that he suffered will stick in his friends, whose name is legion, against all participators for many years to come. Instead of time softening this feeling, it will only aggravate it.—Chambersburg Repository.

An Incident of the War.

Fort McAllister was taken by assault, but Savannah still held out and offered a strong obstacle to our march. Finally, however, that city was taken, but there was no means of direct communication with the north to transmit the news. Knowing the great anxiety of the northern people to learn tidings of his progress a messenger was sent from Savannah by night, down the river eighteen miles to the fleet at its mouth, with the welcome news which was to electrify the loyal nation. The river was filled with torpedoes and obstructions, and the banks were lined with rebels, but the daring young messenger, for he was but seventeen years of age, taking only two faithful negroes as guides and oarsmen, threaded the dark and dangerous river and reached the fleet in safety, carrying Sherman's famous dispatch to the President, which the readers of the State Journal read in three columns on the morning of December 26, 1864, as follows:

> SAVANNAH, GA., Dec. 22.
> To his Excellency President Lincoln:
>
> I beg to present to you as a Christmas gift the city of Savannah, with 150 heavy guns and plenty of ammunition, and also about 25,000 bales of cotton.
> W. T. SHERMAN, Major-General.

The safe conduct of that dispatch was a daring feat, requiring the highest degree of courage and judgment. People will readily remember the incident and the dispatch, but the modest young bearer of it has been known to but few persons until late years, though he is to be better known in the future. His name is Joseph B. Foraker, the next governor of Ohio.—Columbus (Ohio) Journal, Sept. 21.

An Infamous Conspiracy Exposed in Erie.

In the Erie county almshouse there has lived for some time a refined old lady named Louisa Colegrove, who has all along insisted that she had been placed in confinement by cruel and mercenary relatives who wanted to get possession of her estate. As it had been represented that her intellect was weak no notice was taken of her pitiful appeals until a Mr. Lewis Deams heard them. He took down her story, visited the place and persons named, and became confident that she was the victim of a foul conspiracy. He applied for a writ of habeas corpus and on Saturday the poormaster brought her before the court. An investigation brought to light a plot to obtain the large property owned by the woman, and Judge Galbraith ordered her restoration to liberty.

IT is announced that General William Tecumseh Sherman will not wait till his sixty-fourth birthday, the eighth of February next, before turning over the command of the United States Army to his successor, Lieutenant General Philip Henry Sheridan, but will voluntarily retire on the 1st of November. This retirement will probably be the close of a very distinguished and highly honorable career. It is possible that Gen. Sherman may be called from his retirement to again lead the armies of his country, but it is highly improbable. No country in the world ever had a fairer prospect for long and prosperous peace than this country now has. With Gen. Sherman's retirement, the title of general will disappear from the active list of the army. He and Gen. Grant are the only Americans who have ever borne it. The title of lieutenant-general, which will expire with Gen. Sheridan, has been borne also by Washington, Scott, Grant, and Sherman, Lt. Gen. Sheridan is only fifty-two years old, and may therefore expect—barring accidents—to remain for twelve years at the head of the army. This is not so long a term as that of Gen. Sherman, who came in when Grant went to the White House, March 4, 1869, but it is long enough to destroy the hopes of the Major-Generals—Hancock, Schofield, and Pope—of ever reaching the command, for they are all older men than Sheridan. It is improbable, indeed that any even of the present Brigadiers will ever reach the command.

STATESMAN JENKINS, of Luzerne county, after mature deliberation, pronounces our own Field Marshal Cooper "a red-headed son of perdition," and the report adds that "this remark was greeted with loud and prolonged laughter from the democratic side of the House." Cooper shouldn't object to this sort of thing. He makes the mine-bosses weep so often that he should consent to be the means of provoking them to smiles once in a while. The merriment is cheap, and then, too, it will be so brief.

ONE greenback convention in Massachusetts yesterday nominated Butler for governor. Another greenback convention will be held in the same State in October to nominate somebody else. However it may be about votes, the greenbackers always have plenty of candidates.

[illegible] are worried about the [illegible] race. The working [illegible] fights they want.

STEEL pens ought to be cheap when there are 22,000,000 made every week, but the last one spoiled by Pattison cost the State $27,964.

THE Standard Oil Company denies, through one of its agents, that it is going into the cattle business. Choice lamb is good enough for it.

ONE of the phases of democratic reform crop out in New Jersey, where they demand the abolition of the internal revenue taxes on whiskey and tobacco.

A FALL of 30 per cent. in the price of matches means that the match combination are no longer able to charge purchasers twice as much as matches are worth.

SINCE Congress adjourned nearly 800 Postmasters have been appointed, and by the 1st of December, it is expected, about 800 will be awaiting confirmation by the senate.

THE Ohio election is less than three weeks away, and still the democrats of Cincinnati are annihilating each other, and the standard bearer is in the republican State of Pennsylvania.

EX-SENATOR CONKLING is reported to have said that he is waiting for the American people to call him back into politics. It is hoped that he has a goodly stock of the supreme virtue of patience on hand.

THE democratic ex private secretary of the democratic Senator Gorman, of Maryland, has been forging the senator's name to drafts. And this is the party which asks the people's votes. The Maryland democrats must go.

THE result of six years democratic rule in Louisiana is that the public schools are closed, owing to the paring down and division of the school fund to other purposes. The democratic party has no use for public schools, at any rate.

WHEN the Scranton Republican considers that the State paid Mr. Jenkins ten dollars just for calling Senator Cooper "a red-headed son of perdition" it "cannot help admiring the liberal policy of this grand old commonwealth."

ABOUT the only democrat in the State that feels that his ticket can be elected this fall is Chairman Hensel, and he only talks that way because he is passing his hat around for alms. The democratic ticket will be beaten twenty thousand clean.

WHEN Samuel J. Tilden knocks Sullivan out in one round; when Captain Rhodes swims safely through the whirlpool rapids; when Stephen Dorsey begins to tell the truth; when Conkling admits that after all the country wasn't set back more than two years and six months; when Oscar Wilde writes a play that will run a week without loss, it will be time to expect the republicans in the Pennsylvania legislature to pass the democratic Apportionment bills.

THE republication of the cipher dispatches, which exposed the scheme to buy up South Carolina for Tilden for $80,000 in 1876, leads the Charleston News and Courier to make the statement that Mr. Tilden agreed to contribute $5,000 to the expenses of the canvass in that State, "that $5,000 were spent on the faith of Mr. Tilden's promise, and to this day Mr. Tilden has not repaid a solitary cent of that which was expended in his name."

JUDGE HOADLY, the democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, has been for a long time in Philadelphia in care of a physician. A despatch from there says he is finally getting better, and is preparing a speech to deliver before the October election. Indications are, however, that his cause is lost, and talking will do him no good. The Scott liquor law in Ohio, instead of a source of republican weakness, seems to be a source of strength.

A Famous Galaxy.

People who delight in beautiful and good books will be astonished when they see, if they have not already seen, the announcements of the "Caxton Illustrated" and other editions of standard authors, issued this season. The typography and all mechanical qualities of printing and binding are simply superb, and the prices a veritable marvel, to the old time book-buyer. The list includes the works, complete, of Dickens, 15 volumes, reduced in price from $22 50 to $9 50; Thackeray's, from $15 00 to $6.75; Geo. Eliot's, from $12 to $3.75; Washington Irving's Works, from $20 to $4; Scott's Waverly Novels, from $60 to $7.20; Hawthorne's Works, from $21 to $6 50; J. Fenimore Cooper's, from $30 to $12 00; Bulwer's, from $31.25 to $6.50; Wm. Black's, from $15 to $4; De Quincey's, from $18 to $6.00. The publisher sends them to any one for examination before requiring any payment, on reasonable evidence of good faith, and will send a 100 page catalogue of these and other works free upon application. John B. Alden, Publisher, 18 Vesey St., New York.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

The bottling works at East Smethport have been sold to a Mr. Stall, of Eldred.

—Vennor makes the prediction that there will be no ice the coming winter. He evidently lies.

—Until Monday you can buy a horse at nearly your own price by calling at the Bennett House stables.

—Next Monday it will only cost you two cents to mail a half ounce letter to any part of the United States.

—Attention is called to the advertisement of D. Langell's Asthma and Catarrh Remedy in another column.

—The Elk County Agricultural Society will hold its annual fair the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th of next month, at St. Marys.

—Geo. Walker offers his hotel property in Kane for sale. It is a valuable property and will not remain long in the market.

—Nothing short of death or some other dispensation of Providence was considered a valid excuse from service as juror this week.

—At the Bennett House stable can be seen a good display of Texas horses which are offered at great bargains. Take a look at them.

—Notwithstanding the apparent superabundance of hotels in this borough, they all found it difficult to find room for their guests this week.

—The Elk Democrat calls for a good job printer. It is a scarce article, and we know of very few in this section—outside of the MINER office.

—Parties sending us money in payment of subscription by mail will please observe by the date on the address label that proper credit is given.

—The trains on the B. B. & R. have been running in bad luck this week, and a trip to Smethport is coming to be looked upon as something to be dreaded.

—We learn that Sheriff Wilcox was detained at Philadelphia by sickness from his duties at court this week. The deputies were thus kept more than busy.

—Candidate Melvin is in town, and judging from appearances we would conclude that he has in fact accepted the democratic nomination for county treasurer.

—While out in the woods shooting squirrels on Saturday last, Dan. Dwyer became excited and shot himself through the right foot which will keep him quiet for a few days.

—Some chap who has more money than he knows what to do with has started a daily paper at Renovo. He has found a most expeditious manner of getting rid of it.

—A number of our local Knight Templar, members of Trinity Commandery No. 58, of Bradford, attended the second anniversary and social reunion of that organization yesterday.

—Next Sunday is the last of the conference year in the M. E church. The Genesee conference will meet in the First church, Rochester, on Wednesday, Oct. 3. Bishop Andrews is to preside.

—Sir Knights D. H. Hamlin, W. D. Gallup, D. C. Young, H. L. McCoy and M. A. Sprague, with their wives, attended the second anniversary of Trinity Commandery No. 58, at Bradford, to-day.

—The gas company is now fully organized, and the pipes are being laid from the wells on the Rogers farm. The company will be prepared to furnish gas to consumers in a few weeks at the farthest.

—A good chambermaid is wanted at the Grand Central and a good housemaid and cook at the county jail. Both are good places with good pay and the right kind of a girl can secure a permanent situation by applying at once.

—The Catholic fair is in session this week at the Opera House. The attendance and receipts have been large and very gratifying. The watch contest between Messrs. Walsh and Sullivan will be decided Saturday evening.

—Mrs. Phoebe Stull, wife of John Stull, of Eldred, died last week in the 70th year of her age. She was the oldest daughter of Rensselaer Wright, Esq., the first elected sheriff of McKean county, also one of the first county commissioners.

—J. J. Newman piloted a party of Buffalo lumber dealers to the Kinzua bridge and other points of interest in the county on Wednesday. They concluded there was enough hemlock lumber in old McKean to last a number of years yet.

—In the case of the Commonwealth vs. Lafayette Ludwig, who was charged with cruelty to animals, mention of which was made in our last issue, the grand jury failed to find cause for bringing in a true bill, and put the costs on the county.

The excursion to Portage last Saturday, under the management of the B. N. Y. & P. R. R. company, was most successful in every respect. The excursionists filled thirteen coaches, and a most pleasant trip was enjoyed with no accidents or mishaps to mar the occasion.

—In another column we publish the report of the secretary of the semi-annual W. C. T. U. convention held in this place on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The convention was well attended, and it is evident that the ladies are in dead earnest in the good work they have undertaken.

A number of Bradford's soiled doves made a spectacle of themselves on the streets on Tuesday. The fallen sisters found some difficulty in obtaining first-class hotel accommodations. Most of our hotel proprietors are a little particular as to the character of their guests—unless they are members of the bar.

If you have an ambition to possess an expensive billiard cue, by signing your name and paying fifty cents at King's billiard parlor you can secure one chance in seventy-five to win one at a raffle. But even if you do not win it you will have donated your money to the support of the hose company, which is no more than you ought to do.

—The number of [illegible] schools is increasing [illegible] and Professor Yeats has been compelled to engage a temporary assistant in his department. It will probably be necessary to engage another permanent teacher.

—From now until after election more than usual of our space will be devoted to political matters. Our readers who are "out of politics" will bear the infliction as patiently as possible. The MINER is a political paper, and we cannot help it.

—The subject of Rev. Dr. Huntington's sermon at the M. E. church in Bradford next Sunday evening is "Playing with Religion." Those of us who make our religion a matter of recreation once a week can learn some "pointers" from the doctor on the subject.

—We have added to our subscription list within the last three months the names of fully a hundred new subscribers, to each and all of whom we wish to tender our hearty thanks, expressing the belief that they will never regret this wisest and most important step of their lives.

Hon. Jas. A. Anderson, of Kinzua, called at the MINER office yesterday. He was newly shaven and shorn, so that he was almost unrecognizable to his most intimate friends, and if he hangs on we will not be surprised to hear that he has come out from the ranks of the "unwashed" and become a roaring republican.

—Dr. H. A. Page, of Bradford, seems to be making a record as an attendant upon democratic conventions. He was chairman of the McKean county democratic convention, a proxy delegate to the democratic convention at Springfield, Mass., which renominated Governor Butler, and an interested spectator of the New York democratic convention at Buffalo this week.

—A correspondent of an exchange is positive in prescribing the use of the bell on sheep as a protection against the ravages of dogs. He declares as the result of experience that belling sheep would save them and also avoid the necessity of laying a tax on dogs. He says: "I have tried it thirty years and never lost one. My neighbors have lost sheep all around me. They have not had bells. I use one bell to ten sheep. I have so much faith in bells that I think the law should not pay a man for his sheep if he has no bells on them.

—The R. & P. line from DuBois to Punxsutawney, twenty-two miles in length, was turned over to the company by the contractors on Saturday last. The new line is said to be splendidly built, the road ballasted with stone and masonry excellent. For the present only one train a day each way will be run on this part of the R. & P., but additional trains will be added as the road-bed settles. This extension will develop another large section of the company's coal lands where some of the finest gas and steam coal in the country is to be obtained.

—According to an officer of the B. N. Y. & P. R. R., the gross receipts of that company for August were $200,000, and for the first eight days of September they were $66,000. When the Olean and Salamanca division of the road is ready for business the company will turn over all their coal trade on which they now get fifty miles haul from Oil City to Irvington, and which goes to Buffalo via the Southwestern branch of the Erie, to its own lines. This would give the Buffalo, New York & Philadelphia 100 miles increased earnings on about 600,000 tons of coal per annum. President Jones states that this will add from $230,000 to $400,000 per annum to the earnings of the road.

CHURCH SERVICES.

Next Sunday will close the Conference year at the M. E. Church. Preaching as usual by the pastor morning and evening. There will also be a report of the work of the church during the present pastorate.

Hemlock Bark Not Dutiable.

It has been decided by the Custom Division of the Treasury Department that hemlock bark is not dutiable under the provision of the tariff act, which fixes a rate of duty for extract of hemlock and other bark used for tanning, but is free of duty under a provision in the free list.

Baptist Church Items.

The regular services next Sunday morning and evening. The subject of the evening sermon will be: "Guilty, or not guilty?"

The pastor will preach at Farmers Valley next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Sunday School at East Smethport same hour.

The County Fair.

Announcement is made in our advertising columns that the McKean County Agricultural Society will hold its annual Fair at Port Allegany on the 9th, 10th and 11th of next month. The society does not this year, as is customary, publish a premium list, but all interested can obtain a printed list by application to the Secretary, O. L. Snyder, at Port Allegany.

Institute Lectures.

Everybody will want to attend the entertaining lectures given by Col. Copeland during the session of the institute, commencing the 15th of next month. Col. Copeland will lecture Thursday and Friday evenings. Chair tickets, entitling the holder to a seat in one of the chairs within the bar of the court room, will be sold for 25 cents each; general admission 25 cents. Tickets for both lectures can be procured at A. B. Armstrong's drug store.

Pay Your Taxes.

Under the new Constitution of Pennsylvania an absolute requirement of every voter over twenty-two years of age, is that he shall have paid a State or County tax within two years of the election at which he shall offer to vote. Formerly this tax could be paid on election day, and in many places voters were never challenged on account of non-payment of it. But now it must be paid at least thirty days before the election, so that the only time left to voters is between now and October 6th, and we therefore earnestly urge upon all voters making certain of their right to vote, to hunt up the collector and pay their taxes at once. Those who paid their taxes last year are not required to do so this year to secure their vote, but let all such be sure and hunt up their receipts. The tax required to be paid is very light, and no voter should neglect this important matter; to do so will endanger his franchise.

The new school building [illegible] pushed forward very rapidly. [illegible] Roys, Bump and Swallow, of Port Allegany, now have the work in charge.

The schools have closed. Miss Maggie Mullin has returned to her home in Smethport, Miss Fannie Cavenaugh to Angelica, N. Y., and Miss Mollie McCann to Renovo, Pa.

Mr. W. H. Spaulding, of Olean, N. Y., is looking over the bark on the Buffalo Coal Company's lands. He is in the employ of Mr. Ramsey, of Buffalo, who we understand contemplates purchasing all the hemlock on the 16,000 acre tract.

A very sad accident occurred in the mines at this place on Friday morning, which resulted in the instant death of Patsey Maloney, aged about fifteen years. He was working in a place with his brother Michael, in the new No. 1 Instanter drift, when a large rock weighing nearly two tons fell from the roof crushing him to the earth and killing him instantly. The funeral was held at the house on Sunday morning at 6 o'clock after which the remains were interred in the cemetery at Rasselas, Elk county. Mr. Maloney's family have been unusually fortunate, this being the first death out of a family of fourteen children. The family have the heartfelt sympathies of the entire community in their bereavement.

Clermont, Pa., Sept. 26th, 1883.

The County Poor House.

Petitions signed by two-thirds of the overseers of the poor of the county, praying that an election be ordered upon the question of purchasing real estate for the erection of county poor buildings, were submitted to the court yesterday, whereupon the following decree was made:

Now, Sept. 27th, 1883, the Court being satisfied that the annexed petition and recommendation have been signed by two-thirds of the Overseers of Poor now in office in the Poor District of McKean county, the Court do order and decree that the question of purchasing real estate within said county for the erection of poor buildings in accordance with the second section of an Act entitled, An Act to create poor districts, and approved June 14, 1879, be submitted to the qualified electors of the Poor District of McKean County at the regular election for township officers to be held in said county on the third Tuesday of Feb'y, 1884, said election to be held and conducted and the votes counted and returned as directed by said Act of June 4, 1879, and the Sheriff of said county shall give at least sixty days previous notice of said election by publication in two newspapers of said county as directed in said Act.

FALL OVERCOATS—Greenewalds', Bradford.

Leading the Trade.

There is probably no better buyer in the mercantile trade of the county than D. C. Young, and as he is fortunately able to buy for cash can buy at wholesale at a considerable discount, which enables him to put his prices to customers at a less figure than can those who have to buy on four or six months time. Also, he has been in the business from boyhood up, and knows just what the trade of this section demands and how to buy to the advantage of himself and his customers. He has just purchased an immense stock of goods, and his large store is packed with the latest and most seasonable articles of dry goods, ready-made clothing, boots and shoes, hats and caps, etc., etc. Read his new advertisement in another column, and look at his goods and prices.

Horses for Sale.

The undersigned will offer at private sale in Smethport, from Friday till Monday, Sept. 28th to Oct. 1st, 25 head of Texas Horses. These are not mustangs or Mexican ponies, but a good class of improved horses, all gentle stock, from 3 to 6 years old bred from Kentucky stallions and improved mares. This will be your last opportunity, as I must leave on Monday next, and parties wishing to buy would do well to come and see the stock at once, as they can be bought at a bargain.

J. J. MCCAFFERTY.

STIFF HATS—Greenewalds', Bradford.

The Sixteenth District Middy.

Oscar W. Koester, of Bradford, passed the highest examination, and has received the appointment of cadet midshipman to Annapolis from the XVIth congressional district. He is a younger brother of Ernest Koester, Esq., of Bradford, and spoken of as a more than usually intelligent young lad.

Port Allegany has Another Chance.

At the last term of court, owing to the vigorous remonstrance of the citizens of that borough, no licenses were granted to any of the hotels or saloons in Port Allegany. The matter was again brought before the Court this morning, and licenses granted to the three hotels—the Port Allegany House, Scott's Hotel and the Sartwell House. The thirsty citizen of that borough need no longer harp a keg in his cellar or take a trip to some neighboring town when he gets real dry.

Change in Hotel Proprietors.

W. D. Chambers has assumed the proprietorship of the Exchange Hotel, at East Smethport. Mr. Chambers is a son-in-law of the former proprietor, J. H. Bowers, and having been connected with the house a long time in the capacity of clerk, has a thorough acquaintance with the business. It is his intention to add many improvements to the house, and as Wade is himself thoroughly respected, while sociable and popular the patronage of the Exchange will no doubt be largely increased.

Fraudulent Newspapers.

A number of newspapers throughout the State are palming off on their readers a lot of second hand electrotype plates as reading matter. This stuff is sent from office to office until it makes the rounds, and much of it gets so battered up before it reaches the end of the route that it is unrecognizable. Editors [illegible] in order was the appointment of committees. On motion it was resolved that the chair appoint the committees. Mrs. T. C. Waleman, Eldred, Mrs. F. Chadwick, Smethport, and Mrs. H. Plummer, of Coryville, were appointed committee on credentials. Mrs. M. Simpson, Eldred, Mrs. J. N. Bolard, Bradford, Mrs. A. H. Cory, Coryville, committee on resolutions. An address of welcome was read by Mrs. T. L. Medbury. Response by Mrs. J. N. Bolard. A very encouraging report from the various Unions of the county was then read by Mrs. J. G. Strong, of East Smethport.

Report of Mrs. McIntyre, Superintendent Scientific Instruction, was then read which was very interesting.

Mrs. W. C. Armor, of Kendall, then read her report as superintendent of Sunday School work, which was also encouraging.

Miss Marnian E. White, State Superintendent of Young Women's Work, being present was then introduced and made some very interesting and instructive remarks.

Meeting adjourned to meet Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock a. m.

Thursday morning session opened at 9:30 o'clock.

At 10:00 o'clock convention called to order by the president. Reading of the minutes. Report of superintendent of work among colored people, by Mrs. Black. Report of superintendent of jail work, by Mrs. Medbury. On motion it was carried that a copy of the Union Signal be distributed in the jail.

Report of superintendent of Bible and Evangelistic work, Mrs. T. C. Waleman, of Eldred. Paper read by Mrs. A. H. Cory, of Coryville, upon "Distribution of Temperance Literature."

Miss White then spoke to the young ladies. She urged the young ladies to use their powerful influence in this righteous cause, as their gifts will be brought to account before God.

Names of delegates was then read; twenty-four were in attendance.

The following resolutions were then adopted:

WHEREAS, We believe the use of alcoholic drinks the most baneful vice of our country, and the greatest hindrance to christianity, and the cause of more crime than all other things combined. Therefore

Resolved, That we adopt the method of personal visitation from house to house for the purpose of increasing our membership, also the circulation of temperance literature.

Resolved, That realizing that the press is the great agent in popular education, we most earnestly solicit the co-operation of all editors in McKean county to engage in work of enlightening the people in temperance truth.

Resolved, That we, as christian philanthropists, are not discouraged by past reverses, but have a greater determination to put forth every effort at our command to assist in the great struggle for prohibition until our success is achieved.

The Bible speaks of two kinds of wine, one which is a "mocker," the other a blessing. Therefore

Resolved, That we, the members of the W. C. T. U., do most earnestly and prayerfully entreat the churches in the county to use only that wine which is offered by the Bible, unfermented wine.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be extended to the ladies of Smethport for their generous hospitality and cordial welcome to Rev. E. P. Hubbell, pastor of the M. E. church, for his co-operation and assistance in making the convention a success; to the trustees of the M. E. church for the use of their commodious house; to the courtesy of the Judge and County Commissioners for the use of the Court House; and to the press of the county for favors received, and especially to the Era for the programme presented.

Thursday at 1:30 p. m., Devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. T. C. Waleman, of Eldred. An able report was then read by Mrs. G. Stewart, of Bradford, superintendent of unfermented wine, after which a very interesting paper was read by Miss M. Simpson. Mrs. J. N. Bolard, of Bradford, was elected recording secretary in place of Mrs. Metcalf, who resigned, and Miss Jewell, of Eldred, treasurer, in place of Mrs. Hoover, as Mrs. Metcalf and Mrs. Hoover are leaving the county. After transacting other business the convention adjourned to meet next April, in Eldred.

Miss White, of Mercer county, lectured Wednesday evening in the Court House, and for one hour she held the closest attention of her audience. It was a very interesting and instructive address, and we are sorry that more of the people of Smethport did not avail themselves of this great treat. Mrs. Dr. Freeman furnished a beautiful cross of flowers for the convention, which was very much admired by all.

[illegible] has been ordered by the Court of Appeals in this city. In May, 1831, Miss Virginia Gertrude Stephens, who was the daughter of a wealthy New York contractor, became heiress to a fortune of $300,000, and in the same year she married Henry Julius Fisk, of this city. They afterward came here to reside, and the wife handed over to her husband $210,775.74. It was subsequently found by her that her husband was paying too much attention to other women, and she obtained a divorce by decree of the Supreme Court of New York. The husband offered no opposition to the action, and returned a portion of the fortune. This did not satisfy the divorced wife, and she sued her husband in the courts here, asking that he be compelled to return the sum of $230,000, or give her an account of what he did with the property. The defendant, Fisk, replied that the lady was still his wife in the eye of the Canadian law, and to-day in the Court of Appeals it was held that he was right, and that the New York divorce was not valid; that Miss Stephens is still the wife of Mr. Fisk and therefore, has no action against him. This decision of the courts admits the New York marriage law, but throws out the divorce law. Fisk and his friends are jubilant over the result of the appeal.

Who has not heard or been the recipient of benefits derived from using N. H. Downs' Elixir, a never failing remedy for all diseases of throat, chest and lungs. None are too poor to get cured of all bilious diseases by the use of Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, as they only cost 25 cents per bottle. As a liniment for horses, Henry & Johnson's Arnica and Oil Liniment cures spavins, bruises and lameness at once. For sale by A. B. Armstrong, Smethport.

There is an old lady named Brown living in Hinton, Michigan, whose hair is turning from gray to its original color, and she is now cutting her third set of teeth. For several years she has her second eyesight and can see to do fine work as well as any lady.

Almost Marvelous.

The way Parmelee's Blood Purifier works upon the human system. It is such a thorough purifier, it strikes at the root of the disease and by its perfect workings effects a cure almost before the patient is aware. It siezes upon every particle of poisonous matter in the system, expels it and instills new health and vigor through the entire body. $1 per bottle. Sold by A. B. Armstrong and E. F. Richmond & Son.

A Deluded Blind Girl.

There was an affecting scene last week at No. 905 Warnock street, the house of Mrs. John Enquest, when her sister, Regina Anderson, a blind Mormon proselyte, was led into the house by her brother Leander and sister Anna, who rescued her on Sunday morning at Castle Garden, New York. By some miscarriage of a telegraph message Mrs. Enquest had not been notified of her sister's escape and had no knowledge that the deluded girl was being brought to Philadelphia until the front door opened and she appeared. Miss Anderson who is a young and beautiful girl, said that her home was near Stockholm, in Sweden, had been visited by a Mormon missionary, who painted to her in the most glowing colors the advantages she would derive from exchanging her humble lot for a home among the Mormons. "He told me," she said, "that the weather in Utah was always pleasant; that every kind of fruit grew in the streets and that nobody lived there but rich men, a great many of whom were unmarried and wanted wives. He told me that a husband was awaiting me among his people and said he owned a big gold mine, lived in a palace and owned a dozen carriages and a great stable full of horses."—Philadelphia Record.

Diabetes.

Are you troubled with Thirst, Excessive and Frequent Flow of Urine, Pains in the Loins and Back and Nervousness? These are some of the symptoms attending Diabetes and Bright's Disease. Do not hesitate, but get Parmelee's Dyspepsia, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Cure which will not only cure you but tone up the system and prevent Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Billiousness, Liver Complaint and all kindred diseases. Only $1 for large bottles. Sold by A. B. Armstrong and E. F. Richmond & Son.

The Postmaster General gives fresh evidence that he is in earnest in the war against the lottery thieves, and the New Orleans bank which undertook to help the Louisiana lottery to evade the orders of the department is likely to get itself into trouble. Public opinion will cordially support the Postmaster General in the most vigorous and far reaching efforts to preserve the United States mails from being made indirectly the medium of fraud.

Medicine for Children.

Must not only be effective but so compounded that no harm will result from the use. Such a preparation for worms (to which almost every child is subject) is Parmelee's Santonine Worm Candies, which are made from the best drugs, particularly adapted to this use. They work quickly, surely and harmlessly, passing off the worms after they are dissolved. Do not neglect the children even though they do not complain. Worms are almost always present. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by A. B. Armstrong and E. F. Richmond & Son.

JUDGE FORAKER made a decided hit in his speech at Mansfield, Ohio, Saturday night. In reply to Judge Hoadley's general charge of corruption against the republican party, he quoted from the records, showing that in national affairs the republicans have served the government more honestly and faithfully than any other party. As to Ohio, while three republican county treasurers had embezzled public funds, no less than twenty-six democratic treasurers had stolen the money entrusted to them.

How Watch Cases are Made.

Most persons have an ambition to carry a good watch case, and yet few people know how a watch case is made, or the vast difference in the quality of them. In a SOLID GOLD WATCH CASE, aside from the necessary [illegible] for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless, but unfortunately because gold is a soft metal and cannot furnish the stiffness, strength and elasticity necessary to make the case permanently strong and close fitting. The perfect watch case must combine gold with some metal that will supply that in which the gold is deficient. This has been accomplished by the James Boss Gold Watch Case which saves the WASTE of needless gold, and INCREASES the SOLIDITY and STRENGTH of the case, and at the same time reduces the cost ONE HALF.

Send 3 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

MESSRS. DAY & FRICK.

Gentlemen:—Having been made acquainted with the ingredients of which your [illegible] Soap is composed and having fully tried the Soap, I take pleasure in giving this as my testimony [illegible] The Soap is perfectly harmless [illegible] could be used with impunity even in washing the most delicate infant, or [illegible] It is purifying, refreshing, detergent and disinfectant. No lady, no gentleman, no housekeeper, no hotel, no asylum, no [illegible] should be without it. The above may seem strong language, but I have only embodied my convictions after thorough experience and trial.

Very truly yours,

E. PRICE, M. D., 207 North Ninth Street.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5th, 1881.

MESSRS. DAY & FRICK.

Dear Sirs:—Your Day's Soap has been used in my family. My wife has had some experience for thirty-five years as a housekeeper. She pronounces it the best of all ever used in our family. Yours respectfully,

W. L. GRAY, D. D., Pastor Central M. E. Church, Frankford.

ELIZABETH, N. J.

MESSRS. DAY & FRICK.

Dear Sirs:—Having used your Soap, we can say it gives satisfaction, being much superior to others hitherto used for laundry purposes.

Yours, A. J. MARTIN, Steward, Elizabeth Gen. Hospital and Dispensary.

MESSRS. DAY & FRICK.

Sirs:—I am using Day's Soap, and could not be induced to use any other for any amount of money. I have been suffering with salt rheum for a number of years, and could use no Soap until I met yours, and to my great surprise it healed my hands and now I can do a day's wash without any suffering. It has not only cured me, but saves me many hours of hard work. I therefore willingly recommend it to every woman as the best Soap made.

Respectfully, MRS. PETER [illegible], Owego, 56 Ninth Ave., New York.

☞ Wash-day has no terrors for the household where DAY'S SOAP is used, no unpleasant and sickening odors to fill your houses, no laborious rubbing on the wash-board, while the washing can be done in one-half the time necessary by following the old worn-out method.

MADAM—for it is to the ladies we desire to speak more especially—you are the interested person in this matter; you it is that suffers the ills arising from the wash-tub and its heavy cares; you it is to whom the perplexities and responsibilities of the household rightfully belong, and you it is that should interest yourself in a trial of the qualities of this soap, that has always proven itself to be a boon of salvation

TO SUFFERING HUMANITY.

We do not come to you with a plausible story calculated to have you try it, simply for the amount of money such a sale would bring us; we do not come to you as irresponsible parties, who have no reputation to suffer calumny, but we do present to you this brand of soap upon an absolute guarantee and recommendation of a well known industrial establishment in Philadelphia, of sixteen years' existence. Do you suppose for a moment it would compensate us to make false statements to you and ruin our well-earned reputation? No, dear reader; what we say about DAY'S SOAP is the truth, and it is sustained by the evidences of thousands of housewives from all over the country; besides which we stand ready to endorse it all with ready cash. ☞ DAY'S SOAP is the Original and only Patented. ☜

DAY'S SOAP

Will clean the Miners' Skin and Clothes.
Will clean the Blacksmiths' Skin and Clothes.
Will clean the Machinist's Skin and Clothes.
Will clean Everybody's Skin and Clothes.

Is there not economy in the use of soap that will clean the skin as well as the clothes? This Day's Soap will surely do. It will in no way injure the finest fabrics or the most delicate complexion.

No soda, no washing crystals, no lyes are to be used, but simply supply yourself for the next wash-day with a bar of DAY'S SOAP, then carefully read the directions and follow them to the exact letter, and if you don't say pitch out that old wash-boiler, for I am a wiser woman, you will be the first person we have yet heard of that has been disappointed.

☞ Now remember—If you don't intend to follow the directions do not try the soap at all, for unless you do this you will be disappointed, and then you will scold us and yourself as well.

The cost of one cake will convince you that it is the best and cheapest soap ever offered you, while the smiles that will encircle your brow will do justice to a golden sunset.

Have you confidence in this newspaper? If so, do you suppose the owner would allow us to swindle his readers by offering them tempting inducements? He uses it in his own home, and can certify to its merits. Now you get a cake from your grocer in time for the next wash-day, and become acquainted with its intrinsic worth.

Ask your grocer for it, and do not allow him to put you off with anything else for a substitute, for every dealer can obtain it and should he refuse you, send direct to

The World Challenged.

The Oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic spinal Disease, and paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally, for pain in any part of the body, use freely with rubbing and warmth, we guarantee relief. Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhoea or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence, or sexual extravagance, etc.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
